Report on TWO DAYS ONLINE WORKSHOP ON

“MACHINE LEARNING IN COMPUTER VISION APPLICATIONS” 12th AND 13th MAY 2020

Date: 12.05.2020 to 13.05.2020

Time: 10.00 am to 12.00 pm

The Department of Electronics and Communication Engineering, Sri Venkateswara College of Engineering organized a 2 days online workshop on “Machine Learning in computer vision Applications” with the Resource Person Mr. H. Anand Kumar Singh, Head - Electronics Research and Development, Baliga Lighting Equipments Private limited, Chennai.

Dr.S.Muthukumar, Head of the Department of Electronics and Communication Engineering addressed the gathering and gave the welcome address. The Chief Guest was introduced to the gatherings by Dr.R.Gayathri, Associate Professor. The Chief guest preside over the function and delivered the technical talk on the Machine Learning in computer vision Applications with hands on training with real time applications.

Speaker briefed the session with the following Points which includes Early computing resources could not keep pace technically with the complexity of problems advanced by scientists, and even the most impressive projects could solve only trivial problems. Moreover, most researchers worked in isolated groups and lacked the scientific support to advance the field in a meaningful.

Artificial intelligence has already been seamlessly integrated into many aspects of our daily lives. “AI has found tremendous success in many areas of research in recent years,”. “Game-playing systems like AlphaGo have used reinforcement learning to teach themselves new strategies. Hearing aid’s use deep learning algorithms to filter out ambient noise. These technologies even power the natural language processing and translation, object recognition, and pattern matching systems that we take for granted on Google, Amazon, iTunes, and similar services.”

This trend shows no signs of slowing down – there are many small, repetitive tasks that we can automate to free up our time. Although we have made incredible strides in the field of artificial intelligence, we still need to be realistic about its applications for computer vision – it will be a long time before computers are able to interpret images as well as humans can.

In the short term, it’s more likely that artificial intelligence will be used to augment and extend human capabilities. “My best guess is that the boundary between humans and machines will blur in the foreseeable future,”.The healthcare sector is an obvious example of the positive ways that humans and machines can interface.

Around 150 Participants registered for the event. Vote of thanks delivered by Mrs.S.M.Mehzabeen,Asst.Prof. On behalf of the Department of ECE, the coordinators and organizers expressed their gratitude to the Head of the Department, and Participants across various colleges. We express our deep sense of gratitude to our Management and Dr.M.Sivanadham, Secretary, SVEHT for the constant support and guidance for all the activities of the ECE Department.
